Gunnar Computer glasses are designed to make your eyes not have to work so hard. Your eyes work hard all day and, spending hours in front of a digital device can be additionally hard on the eye muscles. Gunnar's exclusive design blocks blue light and reduces eyestrain while increasing contrast, protection, and focus. The result: improved clarity, comfort and performance.

How They Work

- Lens focusing power removes the eye muscle strain and keeps eyes feeling fresh.
- Amber lenses filter high frequency blue light that can cause both short-term and long-term issues.
- Frame and lens designs hold in humidity and reduce dry eyes and irritation to ease eye strain.
- Amber lenses add contrast to help sharpen characters and shapes on your screen.
- Anti-reflective lens coatings eliminate glare and visual distractions to the eye.

Digital Eye Strain also called Computer Vision Syndrome is a condition resulting from focusing the eyes on a computer screen for extended periods of time. Symptoms can include headaches, blurred vision, neck pain, fatigue, eye strain, dry eyes, irritated eyes, double vision, vertigo/dizziness, polyopia, and difficulty refocusing the eyes. These symptoms can be further aggravated by blue light exposure.

Blue light radiated from digital screens reaches deeper into the eye and its cumulative effect can cause damage to the retina and can cause the development of age-related macular degeneration (AMD). Blue light has also been linked to cataracts and sleep disorders.

I recommend my patients take proactive measures to protect their vision from all the digital screens they look at. The easiest but most unrealistic solution is to stop or limit using digital devices. The realistic approach is to recommend or prescribe computer glasses to take that strain out of the eyes. Glasses with a slight amount of magnification to take the strain off the eyes along with anti glare and blue light tint to absorb the blue light emitted from electronics. -Dr Eric White O.D.

Blue light can cause:

- Cataracts
- Age related macular degeneration
- Slower metabolism
- Disrupted melatonin levels
- Depression

Precicely what i needed

These glasses fit the bill for what I was looking for. I previously had the Amber hue gunnar glasses and they worked wonders for computer glare, phone and TV. When it came time for using those glasses with programs for illustration such as sketchbook pro from autodesk the hue changed the colors slightly. These glasses do not and have greatly reduced my eyes from feeling fatigued and becoming dry. I have used these glasses now for all electronic screen uses, they are sturdy and very well made for the purpose they serve. I will say that they do smudge but it's nothing major, just a quick clean before each use and I'm all set. I recommend these for someone looking, comfortable and they work!

Great product!

These glasses are phenomenal. I literally do not so any more computer work without them. I am a graphic designer and a video producer, meaning that I spend a lot of time in front of computers. Because of this I started feeling pain in my eyes and started getting headaches more and more frequently. That's when I found these glasses. Not only do I no longer have any more pain, but they also do not affect the colors and images I am working with. They are well made and fit great. I would however recammend getting a hard case for them, it is more than worth the $15 bucks.

Not for everyone

I got these glasses because I spend countless hours on the computer: browsing the internet, watching videos, playing videos games, and using applications such as Photoshop and After Effects, and I didn't want to amber tint on other Gunnar glasses. Do these glasses help your eyes become less strained when staring at a computer monitor all day? Yes. However, a turn off for some might be the magnification these glasses have. While, at first, the magnification is not noticeable, if you put the glasses on and take them off, you will notice the magnification, but, for me, the magnification did bother me at all; in fact, it helped me read text better because the magnification enlarges the text slightly, making small things, such as text on a web page, easier to see. These glasses also help reduce glare coming off of your screen, making it easier for my eyes to focus and see the picture better on my computer monitor. These glasses are also very lightweight and siting very comfortably on my face. The construction of the glasses seem sturdy with it's metallic frames and bendable arms the can fold slightly outwards to prevent them from snapping. The reasons these

Since I don't wear glasses/contacts and have great vision, I was recommended to take a look ...

After a couple years of staring at dual 21.5" 1080p HD monitors at work, my eyes fell into a constant state of strain. Since I don't wear glasses/contacts and have great vision, I was recommended to take a look at Gunnar glasses. Seeing as I'm in an office doing typical desktop work for 10-11 hours per day and not playing video games or designing graphics, I chose these great looking frames with clear lenses.

It's been about 8 months since purchasing and my eyes haven't been strained like they used to be. I've also gotten many compliments on their look from others.

Only detractors to this model of Gunnars (as I've seen others comment on as well) is that the lenses never seem to stay clean. I find myself cleaning them with a cloth 3-4 times per day. Also, the frames are on the heavy side and after wearing for a couple hours, the bridge of my nose begins to hurt. Nothing you can really do about that except take to them off every so often.

Great build, but collects dust and fingerprints like crazy

Reviewed in Canada on June 24, 2022

My favorite glasses! I bought this back in 2016 and it's still solid as of June 2022. Sucks that it's dirt magnet. Literally takes one second to get dirty but forever to wipe off fingerprints and dusts. Also, it's quite heavy so sometimes I feel more weight on my nose, but after a while, I get used to it. Are they even still making these? Would be nice to buy another if this one breaks

Great for reducing eye strain, but make sure that they're right for you

Reviewed in the United Kingdom on July 12, 2016

I use these glasses almost daily, there are issues, but none that affect my use case (Software Engineer).

The issues as you'll see in other reviews are mainly as follows:

* Very slight Magenta tint, meaning if you're a designer you may need to modify your screens colors to adjust for this.

* Tough to clean and get stains off without smearing.

For me, the colour tint doesn't effect me whatsoever as my work is mostly code based, and the cleaning issues are a minor annoyance but not a big issue.

The pros are numerous, with the main ones for me being:

* Noticeable reduction in eye strain
